A decade has passed since the Street Vendors (Protection of Livelihood and Regulation of Street Vending) Act. 2014 came into effect on 1st May 2014, marking a significant milestone after nearly four decades of legal jurisprudence and the tireless efforts of street vendor movements across India.

Key Points

- The Act was enacted in order to legalise the vending rights of street vendors (SVs).
- It aimed to protect and regulate street vending in cities, with State-level rules and schemes, and execution by Urban Local Bodies (ULBs) through by-laws, planning, and regulation.
- The Act clearly delineates the roles and responsibilities of both vendors and various levels of government.
- It commits to accommodating all 'existing' vendors in vending zones and issuing vending certificates (VCs).
- The Act establishes a participatory governance structure through Town Vending Committees (TVCs).
 - It mandates that street vendor representatives must constitute 40% of TVC members, with a sub-representation of 33% of women SVs.

- Additionally, the Act outlines mechanisms for addressing grievances and disputes, proposing the establishment of a Grievance Redressal Committee chaired by a civil judge or judicial magistrate.
- It provides that the States/ULBs conduct a survey to identify SVs at least once every five years.

- National Association of Street Vendors of India:
 - NASVI is an organization working for the protection of the livelihood rights of thousands of street vendors across the country.
