  - In 2023, Indian academic Sanjeev Mehta was awarded the Pravasi Bharatiya Samman for his contributions to education in Bhutan.

Significance of Bhutan For India

- Strategic Location: Bhutan's location between India and China makes it crucial for India's security. It acts as a buffer state, preventing direct Chinese access to the Indian territory.
- Shared Heritage: India and Bhutan share deep cultural and historical ties, primarily through Buddhism. This cultural connection enhances mutual understanding and people-to-people relations.
- Biodiversity Conservation: Bhutan's rich biodiversity is of ecological significance, and India's involvement in conservation efforts supports regional environmental goals.

What are the Challenges in India-Bhutan Relations?

- Boundary Disputes with China: China's infrastructure development in disputed areas, particularly around the strategically significant Doklam plateau near India, has raised concerns due to the increased presence of the People's Liberation Army \(PLA\).
  - Concurrently, China and Bhutan are pursuing diplomatic efforts through a three-stage roadmap to amicably resolve boundary issues.
- Geopolitical Implications for India: The disputed Doklam region and the PLA's activities are of great concern for India, as any changes in control could compromise the Siliguri corridor (India's narrow link to its northeastern states).
  - India aims to maintain strong relations with Bhutan to safeguard its strategic interests and prevent any shifts that might expose the Siliguri corridor to security risks.
- Concerns Over Hydropower Project: Bhutan's hydropower industry plays a crucial role in its economy, with India being a significant partner in its advancement.
  - Concerns have emerged in Bhutan about the favourable conditions of certain hydropower projects for India, leading to public dissent against Indian involvement in the sector.
- BBIN Initiative: The original BBIN \(Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, and Nepal\) Motor Vehicles Agreement was signed by all four nations in June 2015. However, following objections in Bhutan related to sustainability and environmental issues, the Bhutanese parliament opted not to endorse the plan.
  - As a result, the other three countries moved forward with the vehicular movement initiative (BIN-MVA) in 2017.

What can be the Way Forward?

- Addressing Economic Concerns: Ensure that trade agreements and hydropower projects are equitable, addressing Bhutan's concerns about dependency and perceived imbalances.
  - Encourage Indian investments in various sectors in Bhutan, reducing reliance on hydropower and fostering sustainable development.
- Adapting to Global Changes: Monitor and adapt to China's growing influence in the region, ensuring that Bhutan feels secure and supported by India in its foreign policy decisions.
  - Collaborate on multilateral forums that include other nations, promoting regional stability and economic growth.
- Promoting Tourism: Develop joint tourism initiatives that encourage Indian tourists to visit Bhutan, boosting economic ties while enhancing people-to-people connections.
  - Organize cultural festivals and events that showcase the rich heritage of both countries, encouraging mutual appreciation and understanding.

Conclusion

Looking ahead, the India-Bhutan relationship holds significant potential for growth and collaboration. By prioritizing equitable economic practices and fostering cultural exchanges, both nations can deepen their ties. Addressing concerns related to boundary disputes and perceptions of interference will be essential for maintaining trust. Mutual respect and shared interests can play a crucial role in ensuring stability and prosperity for both countries.
