In 2017, the Odisha government launched its pioneering 'drink from tap' mission, making it the first and only state in India to ensure drinking water quality on household tap connections.

- The initiative aimed to transform urban drinking water supply, combat waterborne diseases, and relieve the financial strain. It provides 24x7 access to high-quality drinking water directly from taps, cutting costs and time, eliminating filtration or boiling needs.
- Currently covering 2.55 million people in eight cities, the mission aims to reach 4.1 million people across urban Odisha by the end of 2024.
- Real-time surveillance enforces Indian Standard \(IS\) for drinking water, maintaining permissible limits for soluble and insoluble components, ensuring safe consumption.
- Community engagement initiatives like the 'jal sathi' program enlist women from self-help groups to facilitate service delivery and behavioural change.
- Third-party evaluation by the National Institute of Urban Affairs highlights the project's significance and potential for replication.
